Who We Are

Lincoln Literacy is a nonprofit organization that trains volunteers to tutor adults and families who want to improve their English language literacy skills.

Founded in 1972, Lincoln Literacy originally provided only literacy tutoring for adult learners whose native language is English. But as Lincoln became a major refugee resettlement site, Lincoln Literacy adapted to serve English language learners as well. Today the vast majority of its students are refugees and immigrants. Volunteers continue to be key providers of instruction, as well as mentors to learners from many cultures.

Our Programs

Lincoln Literacy offers a variety of English classes for all skill levels of English Language Learners (ELLs). Other opportunities for ELLs include classes in job-preparation, citizenship preparation, drivers' education preparation, and computer literacy. Lincoln Literacy offers transportation and childcare services to those who need it. Families can also benefit from the FLAIR program, a program focused on fostering literacy in children aged 3-8. Individuals can study one on one with a tutor or in a group. Lincoln Literacy also maintains a Basic English program to assist native speakers with reading, writing, and basic math skills.
